The San Bernardino Valley Water Conservation District was formed as a District in 1932 with its beginnings as a Water Conservation Association from 1908. Its primary mission is to conserve water by diverting the natural flow of the Santa Ana River and Mill Creek into percolation basins that the District owns and operates. The District cooperates with others in the region to recharge imported water and steward the habitat in the Santa Ana Wash area. The Conservation District assists in the management of the Bunker Hill Groundwater Basin - the major source of water supply for local communities.
